

The Friends of the Rutgers Geology Museum and the “In Search of Earth’s Secrets” National Science Foundation Program are pleased to present:

Environmental Technology: A Panel Discussion

Dr. Josh Kohut

Associate Professor in Rutgers Department of Marine and Coastal Sciences

“A Robot’s View of
our Ocean Planet”

Rohi Muthyala

Ph.D. Candidate in Rutgers
Department of Geography

“Rivers on the Greenland Ice Sheet”

Captain Breezy Grenier

Ocean Mariner,
Educator,
Scientist, Explorer

“Scientists are Superheroes Too”

Dr. Ramaydalis Keddiss

Teaching Instructor in Rutgers Department of Biochemistry and Microbiology

“Eyes on the Deep: How we use Technology to Visualize
the Deep Ocean”

Wednesday, May 1, 2019, at 8 pm

Rutgers University Geology Museum
85 Somerset Street, New Brunswick, NJ

Light refreshments to follow at the Museum. This event is free and open to everyone!

RSVP on our website:

<https://geologymuseum.rutgers.edu/museum-events/museum-friends-meeting>

Join us for our Environmental Technology Late Night Event prior to the Talk!

Wednesday, May 1, 2019, 4-8 pm

Learn how scientists use new and exciting technologies to solve important environmental issues. Special exhibits from the “In Search of Earth’s Secrets” Program will be set up around the Museum. The event is free and open to visitors of all ages!

